< Task 1 >

The first map shows the present appearance of Islip town whereas second map shows how it will look after development. Overall, it is clear that many new facilities are added in the town. Many new housing society is developed to the south of the country side with rows of shops in either side of the main road. The eastern end of the main road leads to a park situated in south-east whereas school is present at the south-west ^{followed by} and two housing society. After the development, rows of shops to the south of main road is kept intact. Along with these, the school and the park is also kept intact but the size of the park has shrunk. The shop to the north of the main road is completely demolished. The main road is converted to pedestrian path. New housing society is added to the south-east and the north-east. The old shops are completely abolished and new bus station, shopping centre, car parking is developed. New housing society to the south of the shops are constructed beside the school at the same place. And a ^{dual carriage} ~~new~~ road is constructed that envelops the Islip town centre excluding school and south housing present at the south of shops.

Overall, it is seen that more housing are constructed and houses are given more features.
